

Tennis Members
to Play Basketball

TEAMS REPRESENTING MARRIED AND SINGLE MEN TO "CLASH" NEXT MONDAY NIGHT IN HIGH SCHOOL GYM. "FREE-FOR-ALL" AND FREE TO ALL.

If you want to see a new and thrilling version of the "slaughter of the innocents," we recommend the basketball game to be played next Monday evening, December 27, in the gym of the High School, between two basketball teams representing the married and single members of the Narberth Tennis Association.

The game will be free, but if anyone wants to bring a Red Cross kit or a bottle of arnica or an extra roll of bandages to donate to the "victims," every such little contribution will be gratefully received.

Wayne Harris will captain the single men's team and will be assisted—in "captaining" as well as playing, we imagine—by the following: Seanlon, Fretz, Smedley, Perry Redifer, Jr., and Earl Dickey.

Roy Williams will guide the destinies of the married men, and judging by the list of players that he has lined up, he evidently expects "heavy casualties," or else he thinks that maybe they'll all get tired of basketball and want to start a football or baseball game. Anyway, Captain Roy will have with him next Monday evening the following players: Doc Hartley, Whitney, Eastmead, Simpson, Boyer, W. W. Evans, Fenno and Sharp.

What Dick Fenno is doing with that band of giants we haven't yet found out. Either he is a very venturesome young man or else he's a regular "tough guy" and's been hiding something from us.

"You may say for me," said Captain Wayne Harris, when interviewed at his headquarters and training camp on Haverford avenue, "that while we will be as easy with those old married men as we can, we intend to beat them."

So don't forget, if you want to see an evening of real sport and not have to spend a penny of your Christmas money, go up to the High School next Monday evening, December 27, and watch that basketball game.

Community Club Notes

There will be a meeting on Tuesday afternoon, December 28th, at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. A. Hunt Vantier, of the University Extension, will address the meeting on current events.

There will be no children's dancing class this week. The next meeting will be Saturday, January 8, 1921.

The adult dancing class will meet Friday evening, December 31.

Are You One of the Fortunates

To receive an invite to the Bal Masque of the Friday evening dancing class New Year's Eve?

Did you hear about the prize to be awarded the most "taking costume" of the evening? But then there's Ed. Muschamp and Bob Dothard and "Pete" Fowler and Doc Orr and many others who vow the trophy is to be theirs.

As a limited number of tickets will be sold, get in touch with any member or phone Narberth 370-J or 1638-M. Tickets, $1.50 a couple.

Excellent orchestra and still other interesting features New Year's Eve. Don't forget, 8:30 P. M., in the Community Room Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Baseler, Harpist, and Methodist Choir
Attract Large Congregation

There was enjoyed one of the very best musical treats ever given in Narberth at the Methodist Church last Sunday evening, when Mrs. Dorothy Johnston Baseler gave a recital on her matchless silver-toned harp, and the Methodist Chorus Choir rendered exceptionally melodious Christmas carols and anthems, under the expert baton of Prof. C. C. Nice. In addition to several solos by Mrs. Baseler, including "Romance," "Elegie" and "Chante," the harpist accompanied the chorus in their anthem and several of the soloists. Toward the end of the program, by request, Mrs. Baseler played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," her instrument articulating each word of the hymn as though sung by a rich full human voice, and during which rendition no sound was heard throughout the church unless it was the breathing of the engrossed and spell-bound congregation. It is quite impossible to describe the wonderful tone of Mrs. Baseler's harp, but one might repeat a remark overheard among the participants that evening: "It sounds the nearest to heavenly music that I ever heard." The church was indebted to the kindness of Prof. Nice in securing Mrs. Baseler to play that evening, as it was entirely at his efforts and request that the congregation enjoyed her music. The Chorus Choir is developing most rapidly under Prof. Nice's direction, and it is hoped will continue its exceptional work for many years to come, thus giving Narberth a long-needed musical inspiration and atmosphere. The soloists, including Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Cuthbert, Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. Bradley, Miss Prescott, Messrs. Stanley, Justice, Mueller, Atchison, Heck, showed especial talent and thoroughness, and the fact that there are so many good soloists in this volunteer chorus would further almost guarantee its future success and continuance. Narberth is indeed fortunate, and especially the Methodist Church is to be congratulated in having such a competent professional director as Prof. C. C. Nice. Prof. Nice is a vocal director and teacher in New York City and also has a voice studio in the Presser Building in conjunction with the prominent Poppalardo. It is understood that several Main Line churches have repeatedly tried to induce Prof. Nice to train their choirs, but due to his fidelity to Narberth and his wish to instill a musical atmosphere in Narberth, where there are so many splendid and talented singers, Prof. Nice has refrained with the Methodist Chorus Choir. As last Sunday's service was the sample of practically only two months' ensemble work of the Chorus Choir, it is rather difficult to imagine the ability of this unusual chorus after a continued perseverance of a full season.

THE FIRESIDE

Mr. Wm. D. Smedley has returned from a trip to Florida.

Miss Ava Mulholland is home from college for the Christmas holidays.

The community has sustained a decided loss in the death of Mrs. L. H. Trotter.

Mary Frances Hayward is at her home, 123 Elmwood avenue, for the school vacation.

Mrs. Susan D. Brooks was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Brooks during the past week.

Mr. Fred Harsch with Old "Dobbin" is busy this week delivering parcel post for Uncle Sam.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Brooks, of Narberth avenue, will be at home on Sunday, December 26th, from 4 until 6, to receive their friends. No cards have been issued.

Mrs. G. B. Sefton returned this week from a two-months' visit at the home of her parents, Union Springs, Alabama, and at Columbus, Georgia.

The chief need of the Playground Association at this time is a host of $100 subscriptions, as the enterprise ought to be supported by a concerted public opinion of an unmistakable nature.

The survey of the land for the playground, athletic field, community centre, etc., has been completed and the architects are now busy dissecting the report for the purpose of arriving at definite improvement costs.

The Bala Golf Club is said to have formed a holding company to acquire additional land along the same lines as the Narberth Playground Association. A similar enterprise in Bronxville, N. Y., is reported to have shown an increase in the value of its stock from a par of $100 to a present worth of $380.

Mrs. John B. Brooks gave a luncheon and linen shower for Miss Lottie W. Wolverton, of Haddonfield, N. J., on Saturday at her home from 3 until 5. There were twenty-two guests. Mrs. James De Keim, of Haverford, D. C., and Mrs. George R. Havens, of Chestnut Hill, assisted at the luncheon. Miss Wolverton will leave for Spokane in January to marry Capt. Edward Bancome, formerly with the U. S. Army.

Fortunate indeed were those folks who arrived at the Methodist Church before 7:45 last Sunday evening. At this hour the Church was crowded to its limit, and it was necessary to close the doors, disappointing about 200 late comers. Those arriving early were well rewarded. The musical service, which was under the direction of Prof. Nice, was of a quality rarely enjoyed in a small church, and of an excellence of which a large city church would be exceedingly proud. Practically all of the talent was recruited from local sources, a fact in the knowledge of which Narberth should find considerable gratification. If "The Little Church on the Hill" continues to offer similar musical programs, it is a foregone conclusion that its capacity will be more than taxed for many days to come.

MEN AND MONKEYS.

It's a scurvy bird which soils its own nest.

And hard as it is to say it, there's entirely too much evidence of this nasty nuisance in Narberth.

It ought to be uprooted with a vengeance.

It ought to be made a personal matter with every man and woman who has a proper conception of their citizenship, their own dignity and self-respect, the obvious obligation which is theirs with respect to their neighbors and townsfolk.

No slur or castigation of Narberth should go unchecked.

The name and address of the outsider who offends should be given to the Civic Association.

Information will then be furnished which will make him know better.

If he repeats the affront, he becomes a liar and a knave.

Should the town be slurred by one of its own residents, and you hear it—

Then it's up to you to apply your own heroic treatment.

Don't hesitate to be rough on rats.

Ordinary decency impels that we shall stand together in stamping out every trace of this contemptible calumny, this wretchedly repulsive which dastards would bring us.

It's our Home Town involved.

Shame on us, then, if we continue to let it be the victim of wilful slander and depreciating gossip.

There's no place for a dirty viper in a white man's country—

No room in Narberth for curs.

Bids for the collection of garbage from all houses, apartments, and stores in the borough of Narberth, for year 1921, are hereby requested. The bids will be received by the Secretary of the Borough Council up to 8 P. M., Monday, December 27th, 1920, at which time a Special Meeting of the Borough Council will convene for the purpose of opening said bids.

Contracts will be awarded to the lowest, responsible bidder.

Collections will be required in accordance with the following schedule:

Three collections a week during the months of May, June, July, August, September and October.

Two collections a week during the months of November, December, January, February, March and April.

To the Editor of Our Town:

Now that somebody has asked the question, "Why do they do it?" please allow me as a private citizen to help answer the question, propounded almost I would say by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company itself. I would unhesitatingly say after mature deliberation that it is on account of the very, very bad facilities the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has given to Narberth station. In the first place, the very poor and almost obsolete tunnel is the only practical access to the east-bound trains for the people living on the north side, and the writer has actually been unable to get any further than the north entrance to the tunnel all on account of the crowd of people, the majority of which were going in the same direction, trying to catch the east-bound train while a train had already stopped and was standing still at the station platform. This condition, of course, being partly due to the limited condition of the obsolete tunnel itself.

A second reason is that the brakemen on the trains cannot always see just who is coming up out of the tunnel (while the people getting off the trains are going down the steps) before the brakemen give the signal to start the trains. Also, and this is positively so, as is witnessed by an incident the writer saw of a brakeman actually giving the signal to start the train with a lady standing with only one foot on the step of the train.

We only hope the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will wake up and give Narberth the absolutely necessary facilities it requires before one or more lives are lost in the above manner. And in closing let me say that notwithstanding the fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has only recently raised the level of the east-bound train platform to speed up boarding the trains, it is very far from the adequate facilities necessary to the amount of people using Narberth station.

INTERESTED.

To the Editor of Our Town:

Oh, Cub, where are you these days? Such a lot of chances as you missed last week! Didn't you see our noble Burgess' Christmas thought—beautiful and inspired? The sentiments expressed do credit to the grand nature of their author, and I feel you should have utilized the occasion to drive home to us in your old-time vigorous style the uplifting lessons which they convey.

And then there was the announcement of Fred Walzer's promotion to the Magistrate's bench. This famous ball player and equally famous manager has at last received the reward which was his due, and I sorely regret that you, Cub, should have overlooked this opportunity to congratulate Narberth on her great good fortune in having one of such mighty judicial mind and experience to guide her people in their devious ways.

And just at this Merry Christmas Season, too, Charlie Humphreys and Bill Cummer moved away too soon. Or did they sense what was coming? Merry Christmas? Oh, boy!

SPANKER.

BROAD STREET STATION

December 11, 1920, Ardmore Chronicle

If the plans of the Pennsylvania Railroad management concerning the Broad Street Station are waiting upon the co-operation of the municipal government in the determination of its purposes as to street or transit changes, as President Rea, states, steps ought to be taken promptly at City Hall to supply the needed factors in his greatly needed public improvement.

Not only does the convenience of the traveling public require a modernization of this station. The changes in the railroad terminal and the tracks east of the Schuylkill constitute so important a potential in the city's plan for street widening and improvement, to relieve congestion and provide an opportunity for spreading out west of City Hall, that the undertaking ought to be recognized as a public work of first importance.

Market street west from City Hall to Fifteenth Street, and the latter way from Arch to Walnut street, constitute at the present time one of the worst points of congestion in the central city. The widening of Fifteenth street has been suggested, but that would be a partial relief and only a makeshift until the ultimate creation of needed space by moving the railroad station backward beyond the Fifteenth street line.

Moreover, while the spread of business along Market street westward is already under way, that natural trend will continue to be handicapped until such time as the existing railroad nuisance is removed either by the substitution of a tunnel for the railroad viaduct or, if that shall be deemed impracticable, by the complete electrification of the railroad service this side of the West Philadelphia station.

It has been currently reported that the Pennsylvania management is contemplating an enterprising program of station reconstruction at several points along its lines, including West Philadelphia, in the near future. The financial situation may postpone that for a time, but whether it shall be undertaken next year or the year after, the Broad Street Station ought to be included, and the city should be prepared for its part in the enterprise, and even be in the position of urging the railroad to its duty in the matter.

11.00 A. M.—Morning worship. A special Christmas sermon by the pastor and special Christmas music by the Church Quartette.

7.00 P. M.—Senior Christian Endeavor meeting, led by Mr. Ralph A. Beatty, of State College. Christmas Carols will be sung.

7.00 P. M.—Junior Christian Endeavor meeting, conducted by Mrs. Southworth and Mrs. Lambert.

7.45 P. M.—Evening worship. R. M. Stults' beautiful Christmas cantata entitled "The Gift Divine" will be rendered by a double quartette. The pastor will make a brief address on "God's Christmas Gift."

Next Wednesday evening—Prayer meeting, followed by congregational meeting.

Next Saturday, 9.30 A. M.—New Year's consecration meeting for every member of the congregation.

On Wednesday evening, January 5, 1921, Rev. Andrew Mutch, D. D., pastor of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church, will preach in this church at a "Preparatory Meeting," looking forward to the Communion service on the following Sunday.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY.

Hulda, the cook, had just received a letter from her Swedish lover in which he told her of his luck in being promoted to top sergeant. Unable to keep the good news to herself, but doubtful as to its rendering into English, she went to her mistress: "Lars says," she announced, "that he bane been dislocated."

The above department should be of the greatest use to the community, the list contains the name of every professional man, tradesman, mechanic, shopkeeper, etc., who does or can in any way serve his fellow-townsmen, and who is progressive enough to add name to list of Register. As it is difficult for those contributing their time and efforts to the production of "Our Town" to personally either know or interview all such, it would be most helpful if those not now found in the printed list would send in a memo of their names, address, phone numbers and businesses or professions for listing. This will cost as follows: 10 cents each issue for 3 lines; 5 cents for each additional line.

THE GENERAL WAYNE INN.

Curious legends and ancient traditions cluster about the General Wayne Inn. This old land-mark used throughout the Revolutionary War, should be of great interest to the residents of Lower Merion. The Inn has been the silent witness of war and romance.

The General Wayne is typically an antique building. Its walls are twenty-six inches thick, excellent barriers against Indian warfare. Two large rooms occupy the northwest side of the Inn. With their long narrow lockers, white paints, fireplaces, light and graceful mantels, the rooms are indeed attractive. Evidence is sufficient that the steps have been worn down by many, many feet.

The General Wayne was brought more forcibly into public notice during the Revolution. The Inn is situated, as you know, on Montgomery avenue, adjacent to the Merion Meeting House. During the war it lay between the two armies. Its position was indeed advantageous.

Its proprietors have been few. When built in 1704, it was owned by Anthony Tunis. During the war, it was conducted by Abraham Streper, a young lieutenant of the American Continental Lines. Streper, while visiting his family, was taken prisoner by a party of the enemy and detained in the Walnut Street Prison in Philadelphia. He also owned the blacksmith shop opposite the Inn, and it was there that many of Washington's and Wayne's horses were shod. One David Young was "mine host" in 1838, and it remained in his family until 1883. The Wayne was then sold to James Baird, who in turn sold it to the husband of the present owner, Mrs. Edward Odell.

Its sign is quaintly fixed in front and swings back and forth with the wind. Upon it is oddly painted, in colors, a portrait of General Wayne, seated upon a horse. The date of its erection and the name of the proprietor can also be noticed. Upon the whitewashed pole climbs ivy, all the while striving, so it seems, to reach the clear blue sky above.

The Inn has had many names. Soon after it was built it was called the "Wayside Inn," then "Tunis Ordinary." After the founder of our great State had visited the Inn, while attending a Quarterly Meeting of the Friends of this section, it was spoken of as the "Wm. Penn Hotel." During the Revolution it was "Streper's Tavern" and acquired its present name nearly twenty years later, when one of the greatest soldiers this country has produced secured for civilization that territory between the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. On February 6, 1795, Wayne, his last battle fought, worn out in mind and body, passed down this pike, on his way to Philadelphia from Fallen Timbers, the hero of the day. He was met at "Streper's Tavern" by a group of Philadelphia light horse, and escorted in pomp, to receive the homage of the metropolis of the country.

During the Revolution the Inn was in eminent peril. "Hostile armies have camped in the fields that surround it and the victories and defeats of six wars and all the events that go to make up the many-sided life of a community, for nearly two centuries have been reflected in the scenes enacted there."

Alan McLane, one of Washington's most notorious scouts, visited the Inn frequently while the British were in Philadelphia. One night a skirmish took place in the Inn yard, between scouts of both parties. During the skirmish a young English officer was killed, upon his body was found a miniature of a beautiful woman. The treasure is still as fresh and colorful as while worn by that lost lover. It is now in the possession of a member of Streper's family, residing in Germantown.

There is ample proof that bodies have been buried both on the property of the Inn and in the immediate vicinity. When the old Indian trail was converted into Montgomery avenue two bodies were disinterred, enclosed in the crumbling uniform of the Revolution. At another instance a body was found, deeply imbedded in a vat, once used by the tannery at the village of General Wayne.

The first and for a while the only post office in the Township was in the General Wayne. Votes were first cast there and many a hard-fought political battle was enacted within its walls, for I know not how many generations. It is now the custom to vote here. The commissioners of the Township held their first meeting in this building.

The General Wayne was for many years a rendezvous for travelers. The present Montgomery avenue was originally an Indian trail. When the stage coach began its travels, from the Prussia Inn, Philadelphia, to the Beach Haven House, Lancaster, it used the old trail, soon to be made into Montgomery avenue. The coach, beginning in 1785, made a trip every Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday. It always pulled up to the Inn porch, awaiting the arrival of passengers. It was the custom of the driver, while yet a long distance from the Inn, to sound a blast upon his horn, thus making known his arrival.

The construction of a steam railway created quite a sensation. The Columbia Railroad, built by the State in 1834, at the expenditure of $3,983,302, was one of the first of its kind in this country and therefore considered a wonderful achievement. It passed through Lower Merion for a distance of four and one-half miles. The railroad entered the village of General Wayne, below the Inn, and had a prominent stopping place at that point. Mules were used to aid the engine in pulling its cargo over the slight incline at the entrance of the village. The old stone bridge is still standing, on the property of the Inn, over which the railway passed.

The automobile has succeeded the lumbering stage coach, and even now, as in days of yore, the Inn is a favorite stopping place. But with the automobile we come to the present history of that landmark. During the great world conflict the Inn was the scene of weekly Red Cross meetings and daily savings for the boys at the front. Three of its sons saw service. All the while, Old Glory and the three-starred service flag hung side by side in front of the Inn, proclaiming to all who passed its temporary loss.

Many and thrilling have been the tales related by the heroes of several wars in that old building. By that same fireplace, in the warm glow of the logs, were told stories of Indian warfare, but today we hear of the vicious atrocities of the German Army. "Love and veneration should fill out hearts for this landmark of historic value. It is to be hoped that this famous Inn will survive for many years to come and will be pointed out to the younger generation as something to be revered."

IT'S SERVICE THAT MEASURES SUCCESS

It isn't the cut of the clothes that you wear,
Nor the stuff out of which they are made,
Though chosen with taste and fastidious care;
And it isn't the price that you paid,
It isn't the size of your pile in the bank,
Nor the number of acres you own;
It isn't a question of prestige or rank,
Nor of sinew, and muscle and bone.
It isn't the servants that come at your call;
It isn't the things you possess,
Whether many, or little—or nothing at all,
It's service that measures success.

It isn't a question of name, or of length
Of an ancestral pedigree,
Nor a question of mental vigor and strength,
Nor a question of social degree.
It isn't a question of city or town,
Nor a question of doctrine or creed;
It isn't a question of fame or renown,
Nor a question of valorous deed.
But he who makes somebody happy each day,
And he who gives heed to distress,
Will find satisfaction the richest of pay,
For it's service that measures success.

JOKES FROM BOYS' LIFE.

See-Saw.
Ty—"Did you see the saw?"
Cy—"No, I saw the sea."

Now He Feels Just "So-So."
First Class—"I got a frightful stitch in my side at the rally the other day."
Second Class—"Yes, that's the worst of being 'hemmed' in by the crowd."

A Kick Coming.
Rastus—"Say, Sam, wanta' buy a mule?"
Sam—"What ails de mule?"
Rastus—"Nothin'."
Sam—"Den what yo' wanta' sell him for?"
Rastus—"Nothin'."
Sam—"I'll take him."

Understand.
"Now, boys," said the schoolmaster to the geography class, "I want you to bear in mind that the affix 'stan' means 'the place of.' Thus we have Afghanistan, the place of Afghans—also Hindustan, the place of Hindus. Can anyone give another example?"

Nobody appeared very anxious to do so until little Johnny Snuggs, the joy of his mother and the terror of cats, said proudly, "Yes, sir, I can. Umbrellastan, the place for Umbrellas."

Unnatural History.
Second Class Scout—"Why does an ostrich have such a long neck?"
Tenderfoot—"Because its head's so far from its body, I guess!"

Undisturbed.
Inquisitive One (to old gentleman sticking in a coal hole)—"Dear me, have you fallen through the coal hole?"
Old Gentleman (with a gleam in his eye)—"Oh, no, indeed. I happened to be here when the road was built, and so the workmen, unwilling to disturb me, merely built it around me!"

Right.
To li-v-e the wrong way is e v i l.

What?

First Scout—"Say! What is it that you can put in a barrel and the more you put in the lighter it gets?"
Second Scout—"Don't know."
First Scout—"Holes."

Jes' Left.

A negro was trying to saddle a fractious mule, when a bystander asked: "Does that mule ever kick you, Sam?"
"No suh, but he sometimes kicks where I 'se jes' been."

A Point of Order.

Troop President at troop meeting: "Now I want you scouts to be so quiet that you could hear a pin drop."
Small voice at the back of the room when everything was quiet: "Let 'er drop."

Shooer.

Tenderfoot—"Say, Harold, did you know that I had a new job?"
First Class Scout—"No, what is it?"
Tenderfoot—"Oh, I'm blacksmith down to the candy kitchen."
First Class Scout—"I don't get you, what do you mean?"
Tenderfoot—"Just what I said, I shoo flies."

Painless.

Tenderfoot having his teeth worked on: "Ouch."
Dentist—"What are you fussing about, don't you know I'm a painless dentist?"
Tenderfoot—"Yes, sir, you may be painless, but I'm not."
